EDITOR'S BOTTOMLINE

A general prescription is to substantially change agricultural practices, namely, effective irrigation techniques, irrigation scheduling, suitable crop and technology selection, to secure future production and availability of cereals in India. However, small and marginal farmers may not be able to adopt these measures for obvious reasons.

While there is no consensus anywhere regarding the revamping of Indian agriculture, there is a consensus that the root of the problem is the unremunerative farm produce prices. If the farmers can be incentivised and given the right price, then inter-cropping of wheat with successful combinations like pea-wheat, soybean-wheat or oilseed-wheat inter-crops can be achieved. This may help hit two birds with one stone: India has been a net importer of oilseeds, and a majority of it comes from Ukraine and Indonesia.

Inter-cropping would create a win-win situation by reducing the prospect of a 'stagflation' and setting right the structural vulnerabilities in Indian agriculture. An opportunity has presented itself, but it is also a reminder to make lasting impact by restructuring agriculture and water sustainability in one swoop. — S. Subramanian and Chethan Dharmanand in Deccan Herald

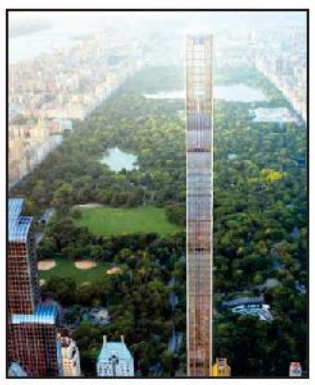
University students create dog bed for humans

Vancouver: A couple of university students, inspired by the comfort of the classic dog bed have created the world's first dog bed for humans called 'Plufl.'

According to its creators Noah Silverman and Yuki Kinoshita, University of British Columbia students, Plufl was engineered "to provide the optimal napping experience" and "maximize comfort and foster a sense of security, delivering relief for those who have ADHD, stress, and anxiety-related issues." Plufl has already blown past its funding goal of 25,000 dollars, securing over 1,55,000 dollars from hundreds of backers. Even though it's not the cheapest dog bed in the world at 400 dollars, Plufl seems to have quite a lot of fans already.

World's thinnest skyscraper may sway in the air



Manhattan: Standing with a height-to-width ratio of 24:1, Steinway Tower, an 84-story luxury apartment building in Manhattan, is officially the world's thinnest skyscraper.

Steinway Tower is an impressive architectural achievement. Not only is it the third-tallest building in the Western Hemisphere – after One World Trade Center (1,776 feet) and Central Park Tower (1,550 feet) – it is actually the most slender skyscraper in the world. Despite standing a dizzying 1,428-feet-tall, Steinway Tower is just 60 feet wide. For comparison, Steinway Tower is as wide as a bowling alley is long.

Structural engineers Rowan Williams Davis and Irwin told the NY Times in 2015, a 1,000-foot-tall tower will sway from a few inches on a typical windy day to two feet on a rare 100-mile-per-hour wind day. The trick is to design them so that the residents never actually feel the movement.

Bannimantap residents facing acute shortage of water

Sir,

We would like to bring to the notice of Mysuru City Corporation authorities, the local MLA and Ward No.17 Corporator that we are facing acute water shortage in Bannimantap Extension since the last five years.

The water supply has been extremely poor making our lives miserable. Quite often, water supply is so scanty that it is not sufficient for the day-to-day use such as cooking, washing, etc.

Sometimes water is supplied only for half an hour and sometimes we have to wait the whole day for water to trickle down from the taps.

It pains to say that we the residents of Bannimantap Extension, opposite KSRTC depot, are denied our share of precious water even after paying taxes sincerely.

Though the new pipeline was laid one year back still no connection has been given.

Hope the MCC Commissioner will direct the officers of Vani Vilas Water Works (VVWW) to take necessary action in this regard at the earliest.

846 CESC teams begin transformer restoration

On day one, 1,535 transformers restored to optimal condition

Mysuru, May 6 (MTY&BCT)- As monsoon is approaching, the Department of Energy has launched a massive transformer maintenance campaign across the State from May 5 to 20 to avoid transformer-related disasters.

Acting on directions on maintenance of transformers issued by Energy Minister V. Sunil Kumar, the Chamundeshwari Electricity Supply Corporation (CESC) began the initiative yesterday in the districts of Mysuru, Mandya, Chamarajanagar, Kodagu and Hassan.

On day one, 1,535 transformers were repaired and restored. In Kodagu, only 103 transformers were repaired due to heavy rain and the extent of damage. In Mysuru alone, 446 transformers were back in optimal condition after restoration. The transformers that were restored had a capacity of 25kva, 63kva, 100kva, 250kva and 500kva.

CESC has set aside Rs. 50 crore for real-time maintenance of transformers to ensure uninterrupted and accident-free power distribution. There are plenty of transformers older than 15 to 20 years and they cause maintenance problems during the rainy season. Rain and thunderstorms damage the transformers and the other reason for their damage is power overload.

In Mysuru, 239 teams have been constituted for the repair, maintenance and replacement of transformers and each team will carry out maintenance of three transformers every day and each transformer will need over three hours to be restored. CESC has a massive task of restoring 1,64,018 transformers under its jurisdiction.

Over 311 teams have been formed in Hassan, 170 teams in Mandya, in Chamarajanagar and Kodagu, 76 and 50 teams respectively have been constituted. Periodic maintenance would reduce the cost of repair and the campaign would also be able to identify locations where new transformers would be immediately needed, said CESC Managing Director Jayavibhavaswamy.

After launching the drive at Kuvempunagar, he visited a couple of places where the transformers were being repaired including Vidyaranyapuram. Jyothinagar, D. Devaraj Urs Road and R.T. Nagar. All the teams in the CESC jurisdictional districts have been given daily targets to complete the massive task, he said.

The intention is to provide safety to the public and to prevent transformers installed in public places from developing fire hazard in the event of a fault in the electricity distribution lines, he added.

The teams will assess the condition of the transformers that are 15 to 20 years old and they will take a call on whether the transformers need to be repaired or replaced. A list of transformers that need to be replaced is being prepared after assessment and they would be replaced on priority, the CESC MD said.

Hale Unduwadi water project nears halfway mark

Another view of the jackwell at Hale Unduwadi. From the jackwell, water will reach the Beechanakuppe treatment plant and giant pipelines are being laid to draw water.

From the jackwell, water will reach the Beechanakuppe treatment plant. Giant pipelines are being laid to draw water.

The project aims to supply an initial demand of 150 MLD (Million Litres per Day) and 300 MLD in the entire project.

The State Government has released Rs. 264.03 crore and the contract was signed on 08.03.2021 and the works began in June. The entire project is worth Rs. 545.00 crore and the cost of the first phase is Rs. 350.00 crore.

Speaking to Star of Mysore this morning, project contractor Kekada Nanda of Sree Subha Sales, Bengaluru, said that it can be comfortably said that 45 percent of the physical works have been completed and 35 percent of financial progress has been achieved.

"We have sent a proposal to the State Government to sanction funds for the entire project — Rs. 545 crore — and this is in the approval stage. Once the Government clears funds, the rest of the work can be taken up. The project hinges on the release of the money," he said.

Project completion by 2023: Yesterday speaking to reporters in Bengaluru, Urban Development Minister Byrathi Basavaraj said that 50 percent of the Hale Unduwadi project has been completed. Mysuru-Kodagu MP Pratap Simha told Star of Mysore that the State Government was committed to complete the project by 2023.

"The project has seen remarkable progress and apart from the jackwell works, pipeline works too are going on in full swing. Funds will not be a constraint and the State Government has already assured release of money in stages," he said.

Also, each aspect of the project is being closely monitored by the Karnataka Urban Water Supply and Drainage Board (KUWS&DB).

"We have a track record of taking up and completing mega projects and this project too will see the light of the day by 2023. The project can fulfil the drinking water needs of Mysuru even if the demand multiplies manifold," the MP added.

After the water is treated at Beechanakuppe, it will be pumped to the Master Balancing Reservoir (MBR) at Vijayanagar Second Stage and the High Level Reservoir (HLR) at Yadavagiri from where it will be supplied to different parts of the city.

Pipelines that will extend up to 26.50 kms will be laid to supply water to Koorgalli KIADB water storage unit, Vijayanagar Fourth Stage water storage unit and Bogadi tank.

Every educational institutions have the responsibility to promote the culture and traditions of the country by creating opportunities for the children to know in depth about it," Shobharani said.

Stating that everyone must accept the opportunities available for them without hesitation, she said, "Everyone must have enough courage to accept the challenges and must have the urge to achieve the goals."

"Education and experience have huge differences. Experience can be gained only by experiencing it. If a degree is like an indication of being qualified, our self-confidence is an indication of our success. The summer camp has succeeded in introducing our culture and creating awareness about the same to the children," she added.

Nypunya School of Excellence Founding-Chairman R. Raghu, who presided over the event, said: "Good co-ordination and relationship between teachers and parents help in building a bright future for the children."

Siddarameshwara Trust President Kenchappa and Radio Jockey (RJ) Avinash were felicitated on the occasion. School Principal Shilpa Prashanth and others were present.

South Western Railway, NDRF conduct mock train derailment-induced rescue and relief operations

Mysuru, May 6 (RK&KS) - In a bid to test the efficacy of the Disaster Management Plan that includes a range of activities enabling the personnel from various departments of the Railways to practice the safety-related measures during emergency, the South Western Railway (SWR), Mysuru Division, in association with the National Disaster Response Force (NDRF) and other agencies of the State Government, conducted a full-scale mock drill at Ashokapuram Railway Station this morning.

As soon as the sirens at Ashokapuram Railway Station began to sound at 10.05 am today, it was learnt that two coaches of the passenger train had derailed and one of the coaches had mounted atop another coach.

The scenario was created where two General Sleeper Class passenger coaches SWR 02228 and SWR 90609 of Special Tourist Train going towards Nanjangud had derailed in Ashokapuram Railway Station limits at KM 4/9-8 this morning around 10 am. Soon, hectic activity followed among the officials of the Railway administration as each prepared to rush to the site of the accident.

Immediately on receiving the message of the accident, the Railway Officials belonging to various Departments such as the Engineering Section, Commercial Section, Medical team, Railway Protection Force (RPF), Railway Police, NDRF team, Railway and City Fire and Emergency Services personnel rushed to the accident site to carry out relief and rescue operations as per standard protocols.

The NDRF team led by Assistant Commandant J. Senthil Kumar and comprising 23 personnel and the team from the District Fire Brigade led by District Fire Officer Raju also reached the site within 20 minutes of notifying them. Doctors and nursing staff from the Railway Hospital along with ambulances were at the spot to provide first-aid and assisted in taking out about 25 passengers trapped in the two coaches.

The rescue team which swung into action, cut open the windows of the derailed coaches and ambulances and fire engines arrived at the spot with paramedical personnel to provide first-aid and shift the 'injured' to hospital.

The mock drill concluded at 12.05 pm with two fatalities and seven serious injuries initially reported.

Divisional Railway Manager (DRM) of South Western Railway, Mysuru Division, Rahul Agarwal explained the significance of such periodical drills and said a similar drill was carried out in September 2021 and added that correct methods of conducting mock exercises would go a long way in improving the preparedness to deal with as well as in preventing disasters due to human factor. Minimising the impact, be it loss of precious human lives or damage to infrastructure, are of paramount importance, he said.

DRM Rahul Agarwal, ADRM Devasagayam and heads and staff of various Departments of SWR took part in the mock drill.

A large crowd had gathered to witness the mock drill which they had though that a real accident had taken place.

Ashokapuram Police Inspector and staff also participated in the mock drill and assisted in the rescue operation. Roads were also cleared to shift the injured to the hospital.

LOOKING BACK...

A Park that grows in beauty

Water colour painting by Mukta Venkatesh featuring Cheluvamba Park.

Photograph of how Cheluvamba Park looks like now.

Browsing through the computer some days ago, I found a photo of a lost painting which caused me a pang of regret. Many years ago, wanting its broken frame to be repaired, I took the painting to a framer in Mysore city's Devaraja Market [now threatened with demolition]. After paying the shopman, I carelessly left the parcel by the door. By the time I remembered to go back a little later, it was gone without a trace.

The lost painting was a watercolour by my mother, Mukta, of sentimental value to me. Although she usually specialised in flower studies, this one was a landscape painted around 1942. We lived in one of the Railway bungalows on Krishnaraja Sagara Road adjacent to the residential area of Yadavagiri in Mysore which was called 'Yadavagiri Extension' in those days. There were fewer houses then but many plots that prospective homeowners, like my father, bought from the City Improvement Trust Board (CITB) of the Government to build their homes.

Avenue trees had already been planted, mainly with Gulmohar, but some other varieties as well. From the crest of Yadavagiri, the land sloped left, downwards to the railway line where trains chugged away towards Srirangapatna. Much of the land there was stony and wild with a few scrubby trees and one hoary Plumeria [Devaganigile], revered by local folk for its age and sanctity. It still stands, gnarled with age but with a vestigial beauty, outside the R.K. Narayan Museum in Yadavagiri.

Mukta, in her middle years liked to walk around this area armed with a sketch book. Sometimes she would actually take her painting gear and paint on the spot, oblivious to the curious stares of the occasional passersby. The lost picture was painted from a view point on Vivekananda Road looking towards Cheluvamba Park. Past the Park, on the horizon, Mukta has indicated the building called 'Jaladarshini' which is now the Government Guest House.

The arch over the entrance of the Park, covered with a creeper, its decorative fronds waving gently in the breeze, is unchanged. The scene brings back memories to me of times when I was taken to the children's playground. In a sandy area there was a slide built of cement [colloquially called 'Jaraguppe'] and a see-saw. The trellised nursery for plants stands still densely covered with the same creeper of yellow blooms, pot plants are neatly laid out in its green gloom.

Girija, 4 years old, in the playground of Cheluvamba Park then. Picture right: Children at developed park now.

The seasons are marked florally, trees blooming in succession; a very clever plan to ensure that at least tree is in flower all the time. The Park has Gulmohars, palm trees and lofty evergreens [called 'Christmas Trees' in Mysuru]. The fan shaped 'Traveller's Palm' [Ravenala madagascariensis] stands in the centre of the far lawn. The name was originally given because the leaf bases of the tree store water with which travellers could slake their thirst. The flowering trees, the ethereal mauve-blue Jacaranda, the pink and yellow of the Tabebuia [Bignoniaceae] are from South America, not indigenous to our country. Both varieties in the Park are annually in bloom in spring months; the yellow one being spectacular, its branches laden with clusters of the golden flowers.

The Park was named after Cheluvajammanni, one of Maharaja Chamarajendra Wadiyar's daughters. It is said to have been started in the early 1900s. The truncated photograph of me on the see-saw was taken by my father, an enthusiastic if sometimes inept cameraman! I was wearing a treasured orange and black frock my father brought from his railway travel to Calcutta for my fourth birthday. So now at 84, I can date that playground as being at least my age or more.

The Park has been a part of our daily life for many Mysureans like me. A place to play in as children and, in later years, to sit on a stone bench and think, or walk and meet friends; a green space, a serene space, Cheluvamba Park has aged with beauty. May it continue to be a treasured landmark in our city, entwined in our hearts.

International Astronomy Day tomorrow

A Day to Celebrate the Grandeur of Universe

Astronomy is an incredible and fascinating field of study for many reasons, not least of which is its accessibility to anyone who wanders out on a clear night and gazes skywards to the stars. The sky is the laboratory, observation is the experiment and eyes are the equipment. A significant amount of basic astronomical science can be accomplished without any observing device other than the human eye.

Astronomy is the study of Universe beyond the Earth. The grandeur and essence of Astronomy is remembered and being celebrated as Astronomy Day every year. International Astronomy Day-2022 will be celebrated on May 7. On this day, professional and amateur astronomers all over the world bring the Universe to the public through observing sessions, displays and information booths in malls, science centres and planetarium. Local astronomical societies, planetariums, museums, and observatories will be sponsoring public viewing sessions, presentations, workshops and other activities to increase public awareness about astronomy and our wonderful Universe.

International Astronomy Day is a way for astronomy enthusiasts and professionals to share their knowledge and love of outer space with the general public. For those enthusiastic about space, it is important to know that this day is celebrated twice a year. There is one in the spring and another in the fall to celebrate the changing constellations and various things to observe at different times of the year in space. The dates for Astronomy Day this year are on May 7 and on Oct. 1, 2022.

Astronomy Day was born in California, USA, in 1973. Doug Berger, then President of the Astronomical Association of Northern California, decided that rather than strive to inveigle people to trek long distances to scrutinise observatory open houses, they would set up telescopes neighbouring to where the people were in hectic locations, urban locations like street corners, shopping malls, parks, etc. The public got a chance to look through a portable telescope and they were obsessed. Then wanted to see what went on at the bigger telescopes, they turned out in droves at the next observatory open house. Astronomy Day is celebrated to promote the forerunner of all scientific endeavours and to provide information, resources and encouragement in all facets of astronomy.

On Astronomy Day, thousands of people who have never looked through a telescope will have a prospect to see first-hand what has excited so many amateur and professional astronomers. Astronomy clubs, science museums, observatories, universities, planetariums, laboratories, libraries and nature centres hold special events and activities to acquaint their population with restricted astronomical resources and facilities.

Hundreds of astronomy clubs, observatories, museums, colleges and planetariums worldwide now host special family-oriented Astronomy Day events and festivities. Some organisations extend their activities over an entire week.

The usual theme of Astronomy Day is "Bringing Astronomy to the People," and on this day astronomy and stargazing clubs and other organisations around the world will plan special events. You can find out about special events by contacting your local astronomy club or planetarium.

Mysore Astronomical Society and Dr. A.P.J. Abdul Kalam Astronomy and Space Science Club of Vidyavardhaka College of Engineering, Mysuru, have planned a few activities during the coming week. Mysore Science Foundation too has planned some activities.

And good news is that a Rs. 81 crore hi-tech Planetarium will be setup at the foot of Chamundi Hill in Mysuru soon.

Astronomy Day is not only a great day for people to reconnect with the Universe and learn more about this field of scientific endeavour but it is also a good time for people to get together with friends and family and enjoy the heavens together.

— Dr. S. A. Mohan Krishna, Amateur Astronomer

WORD OF THE DAY

Salt junk

Pronunciation: SAWLT-JUNK.
Meaning: Salt junk is dried salted beef.
Origin: Salt junk might refer to any salty junk food, but, by definition, it refers to dried salted beef and has nautical origins as a name for food preserved with salt for long sea voyages. The word junk itself was used for pieces of old cable or cordage, which influenced the term salt junk for tough, chewy food.
Example: "Civil War soldiers referred to hardtack as 'death bells'; sailors called salt meat 'salt junk,' meaning salted rope ('junk' was originally a term for scraps of worn-out rope, which could be put to various uses aboard ship)." — Charles Perry

THE ODD WORD

Salify

To impregnate with salt.

PHRASE OF THE DAY

Stiff upper lip

Meaning: The term 'stiff upper lip' is used when a person does not show his feelings, especially when he's distraught.
Origin: In 2013 a survey conducted by the British Future think-tank found this attitude considered to be 'outdated' while real reactions are taking over amongst the British population.
Example: "Maria, please don't cry, keep a stiff upper lip. Things are bound to get better."

A kiss is a secret which takes the lips for the ear. — Edmond Rostand
